HEAD OF SIXTH FORM REPORT

Year 13 are the most important year group in the school, as you set the standard for all of the years below, both academically and in terms of your extra-curricular participation. As Director of Sixth Form I have been so impressed by the way that many of you have conducted yourselves personally and also dedicated your time to the pursuit of a good number of other worthwhile activities, beyond just your academic studies.

The commitment of the sports teams during matches and in training is always especially impressive and there have been some tremendous results in rugby, netball and from the continually improving hockey team. In many sports it is often incredible to hear about victories against opposition with far greater student populations than ours. This really points to the seriousness, dedication and organisation of our teams. It has been great to see dance come to the fore on many occasions, but particularly the way it captivated the younger years during the recent inter house competition.

As ever, the Arts were strongly supported by the year group, in Macbeth and inter house drama, as well as at the annual Art exhibition. Music continues to go from strength to strength and your legacy is that that will continue. As I attend various concerts and performances, I am always mindful of the many hours of rehearsal and preparation that have gone on, before these final performances are successfully brought about.

I would like to thank and commend all of you who have taken on the responsibility of leadership roles in houses and within the wider school, working as prefects or within the CCF. Once again, it is important that you have that opportunity, but also that younger students have the chance to learn from you. Special congratulations should go to Ian and his team for the countless hours of work they have put in across the year.

The life of the school community depends on your willingness to become involved and to be proactive. This principle will also apply at university and in your life beyond. The more time you give and the more energy you expend, the richer your life will be. Always be prepared to give more than you take and you will find that you are given a great deal!

You will always be welcome back at old Swinford and I would love to hear all about your exploits and successes. Good luck with your examinations, at A2 and beyond and with your continued personal and professional development.

Finally, an enormous vote of thanks to the yearbook committee for bringing this set of memories together. In particular, Amie Houlston and Jon Ward worked incredibly hard and Kat Tromans came through with the fantastic artwork. Together they have produced a leavers' book that I have no doubt you will take off the shelf occasionally and read with great affection, long in to the future.

UT PROSIM, VINCE MALUM BONO

Dr Richard Heaton
Director of Sixth Form

I've been here almost longer than I can remember, and so much has happened and changed since I arrived here way back in year seven. However, what hasn't changed is how easily everyone makes friends at OSH. Although everyone will be moving all over the place after OSH I am sure everyone will stay in contact with many of their friends.

Without Old Swinford many of us wouldn't have had half of the opportunities we have had, and all of us have learnt a lot here. Whether it is in the classroom, on the sports pitch, in the house or just in the company of others; everyone will have good memories to take away with them.

"All good things come to an end," and although it seems odd that our time here at OSH has come to an end there are other things to look forward to.

Best of luck in the future wherever you end up and it has been great!

Thanks

Iain Hamilton

"Right lads, last night was a blatant display of hooliganism, vandalism, and cowardice" once said a wise man, these words were quickly dismissed.

It all started when nine standard lads were brought together under one roof, Prospect house, which was to be our home for the next year, and possibly putting us all in the same room was the biggest mistake ever made, (nice one Dale!)

Year eight and the introduction to Jackie, Jock, Baxter, and Luke "my fist your nose" Goodwin. Oh and the Gimp cupboard, safe! Also joined by our now figure head Charlie Colman Collins. And the year of HELL YEAH and Jenks, two absolute liabilities that we took maximum advantage of. Also our first encounter with the infamous gauntlet shortly followed by a cold bath and a Turnbull dead leg special, safe!

2002, saw the admission of the associates Ben Gayes and 20 quid "Dunk" Tucker, who quickly found their feet and ripped it out of Stirk with the rest of us. Also was Dunks, and Gayes first introduction to the way things were done in Baxter was the Christmas dinner beats, which at their prime, we will never forget. Later in the year the religiously watched "Darren's Stuff Collection" was put on pause for the entirety of three whole days, before he gamely responded by bouncing back (unlike Simcox…nice one Tucker) with three more discs (1-14, when will he learn his lesson)!

With the rabble finally assembled, we were ready to continue with Baxter jokes (see dictionary if not understood) and with the likes of Jizz-hed, "put it in your diary lads" Craven, Lang the thug, WAG and his general nakedness and others we were ready to embark on our GCSE's. Which we did bare work for!! Such as the invention of "capture the bin" and brawling with Bowers on the regs, and Stirk's infatuation with the next girl to walk past the window provided us with infinite ammunition to shame him for years to come. With Smith maturing and attaining higher levels of sarcasm, the creatures of Baxter had to think fast to avoid an unnecessary verbal raping.

After our exams, looking back on the mockery the GCSE's made of our so called 'potential', the boys of Baxter decided to take the party to the infamous Mary Stevens Park, which featured such brilliant antics as Stirk "The Stag", later to become the regular 'pimping' grounds of Joey 'the wolf', constantly on the prowl for anything with a pulse!

Over the summer holidays the boys of Baxter returned as mature adults keen to fight off the allure of the peasant factory, sadly one was taken from our fold never to return to Great Grey Hoose, Safe jokes ceased to stop with "Poo Boy Craven" providing endless hours of laughter at his own expense, and of course numerous situations being aimed a certain individual, whom was once paid a special visit by Jehovah himself, (seemed like a good idea at the time) good one Robadoba and Colman. What also seemed like a good idea at the time for a certain individual was to go to the toilet in the bin one prep. Yes it's rather strange, but very much like the boy himself; who it has to be said has never ceased in providing entertainment for us during our stay here, albeit he never turned up in the whole of yr7.

Then came upper sixth...and Leon "Un-politically correct name for a person of African origin" Ashmead. Following last years ridiculous prefect ships (Website Managers what is going on?) Andy having decided to be safe and only choose 5 prefects, called the remainder into his office to deliver the bad news, and they took it surprisingly well (Craven!) (Like all final Christmas dinners, our one provided much entertainment, especially for Stirky, celebrating his well timed 18th birthday by redecorating the carpet. It was also a joyful occasion, as during the dinner we were given the honour of being in direct sight of what was affectionately known as 'The Twins'. The owner shall not be named! Upper sixth came with the responsibility of leading our glorious house from the front. Which we did on regular occasions, Friday nights in particular we could be found setting a fantastic example down the Crispin, making maximum use of the help yourself fire escape bar!

The jokes we have had over the years all have one thing in common, they have all been at someone else's expense, and when you think that the jokes over, Lang just goes that one step further, and makes it a whole lot funnier!

But here we are coming to the end of an era, in the greatest house of a fine institution. We shall surely be remembered for our wit and our charm, our utter lack of academic motivation, and our undeniable sense of humour. There will be moments that we will never forget, such as our regular bouts of excessive drinking, heinous amounts of banter, and tearing it up on the sports field (of any kind) all year every year, too right!

We may not win everything, we may come last academically, but we wouldn't want it any other way. And passed on by ones who went before us, we hope that vandalism, hooliganism, and cowardice live on in Baxter hoose.

Forever Jock's grey army!

The story of Fruity's Purple Army, the Year Group (arguably) that would bringthe Foley Trophy out of the clutches of the green daemons began, ratherobviously in year 7, This first year of boarding introduced us to pillowfighting and dorm raiding and other less interesting aspects of boarding. We will always remember the night that part way through a mass pillow fight we all suddenly stopped as we heard Mr Wilkins enter the room. Well, most of us did; Vince didn't realise that he had walked in and continued to talk almost entirely to himself as the rest of us were "sleeping." Our other treasured memories include Bradley putting his foot through a window, Bradley getting his elbow stuck behind a radiator and B..b..b..bradley grassing us up and earning us an essay on "the life cycle of the crane fly" and our greatest memory: the view of Dave Milton bending over a radiator trying to get David's glasses out from behind it.Year 8 saw the invention of the nicknames "Daddy," "Da Chosen 1," "Caterpillar," "Puuuuuube" "Piggy," "Iggie's English folder innit." As well as Bradley's protests over losing out on 10p that resulted in us not being able to order a pizza – and then years of abuse including us putting "Property of Bradley Longstaff" stickers on our spare change.

And so onto Year 9 and the arrival of Nathan Archer (future Head of House) Dan Livingstone(d) (Drop-out), Simon Stilwell (Mumph) and Fernando "Gas-Bil" (Spanish), and unfortunately the departure of Mr Drinkwater at the end of our first term, our second tutor of our OSH career. On to our Third Tutor the Legend that was Mr Phil 'Fruity' Hildesley, who rarely turned our lights out before midnight on Fridays.Smelling of various alcohol and nicotine products when he did so. Nathan quickly made a name for himself as the 'computer geek', Dan as the 'Rebel', Fernando Bas-Gil as the 'Randy Gas-Bill' and Simon Stilwell as the….prick. One night, after lights out, while we were talking about pretty much anything we hear a small shriek from John, after he had calmed down, we discovered that he had found a rather unusual, hairy, ball of mould on the side of his bed. After leaving it there to rot for close-on a year, David took it apart and found a Jelly baby was at the core. Other great memories included teaching Fernando that "umbrella" and "shampoo" were swear words.

This brings us on to year 11,the year of coursework and exams. All this stress culminated in a rather large hole being created in Simon's wall and much bullying of Edd "Eddie" Whitehouse and Jon Moy (all in good humour ofcourse!). Mr Gregory arrived and began enforcing breakfast. Few other notable events happened in year 11; Vince broke another light cover (his fourth since year 8), and Nathan built a new computer.

Year 12, and the arrival of Telford "What the Fung" Wong and David "Drogba" Lee, the nearly suicidal Matress Jumping was certainly a highlight from year 12 as was the winning of the Foley Trophy in the final term, the termthat we took over as prefects.

Year 13 has been a good final year, Vince didn't break any more light covers (yet). So now we'd like to wish the whole house and each other good luck for the future, and we will be back.

Over the past seven years, the Foley have come and gone, we have been beaten and apart from a select few (Shaun, Danny, Alex), have failed to return the beats. Five years of Foley Trophy success has come at a price. Signs of burnout have finally seeped into the Foley of 2000, yet our Foley spirit has grown throughout the years.

From the very beginning the big dorm caused the group to instantly gel. Some were prone to slightly missing their mummy at times, and Baz took this feeling right to his heart. Rugby (Goodie) played a most influential part in our early days, somehow making sure that we had a strong Foley contingent in the A team: Pete (A prop), Smithy (A prop), Dan (A flanker), Danny (A No.8), Phil "PK" (A winger), Tom (A winger), Heners (A full back), Alex (B captain & fly-half), Iain (line-out specialist) and Baz (C team tank). Ruptures were caused by the dorm split, with Pete's teddies bearing the brunt of the fallout, even leading to a casual bit of crucifixion. Much pain was caused by the now infamous Foley Challenge and daredevil covert missions around the house succeeded in pissing Brand off.

In the big boy house new rules came into play and our early weeks were governed by the three Ps (petrol pumps, porno and passive smoking courtesy of PAG). A new recruit was forced into the year group for character building. James Dean was very keen on WWF wrestling and Baz soon challenged him to a Hardcore encounter. Our first year was influenced by the Upper Sixth, who taught us the intricacies of the G-mertenspanten. My greatest memory of this year was the atmosphere in the Foley TV room during the World Cup, with Dexter and Rog forcing us to sing the national anthem. A lesson that was learnt the hard way was the sacredness of Emmerdale as well as the adverts in between. Rugby was still the main sport that coursed through the year group's veins and this fighting spirit caused the War of the Years. Austin, Flynn and Wakeman all equipped with towels and belts… good fights.

At the start of Year 9 timid Temple and weary Williams arrived. The competition soon started in earnest to beat Henry's 6-second wind-up record of Josh. Congratulations to Baz and Alex for riding the Temple storms of the first term and everyone else, for that matter. The year lightened up with the arrival of Club Bed, courtesy of Leo Hewitt. A short but eventful stay with Schoffner was soon followed by the legendary Mr. Charles Mutassa. Ehhhh! On his first morning, walking down to breakfast, slipping over three times, it was obvious that he was woefully unaware of the dangers of ice. The arrival of Kate Pegg stirred up a little mischief in the house, as faces appeared at windows. Five-a-side football began to make an appearance, not helping with the year group's rugby domination.

Year 10 hailed the beginning of the much-hyped GCSEs, but nobody appeared bothered. The Austin, Flynn and Wakeman were gratefully out of our way downstairs, reducing the amount of bruises all round. A lesson that everybody learnt was not to piss Chris Wells off during exams. In the words of Mr Goode 'You're not exactly anorexic Mr McAllister, Phillip 6 teachers have told me today that you stink and you Foster, are a GobSh*te.' Playing out the back of Foley came into its own in Year 10 with the whole year group represented on the Foley Oval. Let's not be forgetting our excellent tutor, Mr. Ball….only kidding! Our real tutor/social guru was Sharku Harku. He soon cottoned on to the fact that being generous in Foley House and lending money will get you nowhere. Josh Temple claiming to have been given in excess of 200 pounds for donner meat in one week.

In year 11 everyone needed to get their heads down, with exams coming. But people struggled to concentrate, none more so than Phil, Alex and Henry who quickly became addicted to the notorious Football Manager. Life downstairs gave us a glimpse of maturity when newspapers were read at break and the corridor played host to a spot of cricket. Mocks were sprung upon us, Tom only realising he chose GCSE History as an option and would have an exam in it in a week. Under the caring, watchful eye of the calm, composed Mr. Jandrell, 12 out of 13 people managed to keep more or less on track. Phil, on the other hand, was horribly derailed. All his hard work finally paid off, when he managed to get his much sought-after clawed hand. The end of the year heralded the infamous Foster's countdown.

We arrived in the 6th form, one man down but suited up with a new swagger about us all. The opening induction day failed to achieve any Day pupil/ Border unity, but did see Smithy try to pull Miss Paelthorpe, understandably mistaking her for a 6th former. At last being among girls, we were met with little success. Finally, the rugby domination had faded away, with only Baz (C-team tank) representing the 1st XV. Few people seemed to notice that the difficulty of the work had stepped up a notch, after the now 'easy' GCSEs. Getting our heads down was the aim over the next year.

The last seven years have been the best so far. So much has happened and I will leave with fond memories, from saying hello in year seven, to going on tour to Fiji and getting my final exam results. The Foley know that all this success does not come from their efforts alone. I would like to thank Mr Goode for guiding us through the 7 years, for being such a motivated and dedicated housemaster and defiantly for the foyer moments. I must also thank the Matrons for all their hard work and generally taking care of us. Farewell and best of luck to everyone in the future.

FORMAL

INFORMAL

In the beginning there were 8: Will (Farmer) Mcfarland, Richard (As large as a buss) Bussell, Phillip (The lip) Bond, Charles (Cheese) Evered, Tom (Synagouge) Zielinski, Oli (Strawberry head) James, Neil (Sheepy) Mcgee and Franklin (In need of a meal) Emilifeonwu) by this time 2 had already fallen (Patrick (The robbotic linesman) Munro-hunt and Leslie Dodoo. These 8 brave souls emerged into the pits of foster house. During this first year 2 of the before mentioned soldiers were constantly at each others throats, these two of course were Phill Bond and Charles Evered, these fights always ended with Charles' tears and Bond the unanimous winner.
This year there was also the infamous Zielinski - Bond anal adventure, which we we will not get into any further detail about.

Year 9: 2 more soldiers entered into the arena (Rohan (Robodoflo) Moran and Ryan (Chatterbox) Cox), during this year many stupid and crazy things occurred, such as the launching of Jackass, curtsey of Will McFarland's video camera, which in involved amongst other things, bush diving and trips down the bottom field hill in a laundry cart, which resulted in Rohan Moran being injured by a large hedge and received a copious amount of antiseptic cream soon followed.The game of the year though, and arguable the funniest game we ever played in foster was the infamous "Run-away from Hudson". Charles earned himself his first proper nickname with Pizza = Friends.

Year 10 : At the beginning of this year the Regime of Mr Christley ended, and made way for that of Mr "Magneto' Marks. This year the 'Pissing about' intensified with such games as the mattress game which caused numerous injuries and eventually was haulted, though not before Bond was given a suitable beating. Another past-time was tying up Will Mcfarland to a chair by the use of videotape, and torturing, this involved toothpaste, galaxies and Pepsi.

But perhaps the most hilarious point of the year was the 'light-bulb game' which involved trying to catch a light bulb, without breaking it...lets just say bond never achieved this feat.

At the end of this epic year, we decided to relect on the damage caused, by creating THE LIST (Who broke the most stuff) which Rohan came away with the victory, closely followed by Charles in 2nd by his rampant tuck shop visits, which required short cuts, by the means of removing doors from hinges.

Year 11: By this year we had started to mature, this meant shaving...or more appropriately put shaving foam fights! Yet another annoying game from the (Bussell - McFarland Coalition) the 'Hey i found your stuff' game, which involved people find their possessions that they had in the room 're-found' for them, which resulted in Bond underneath a pile of all this room contents, and the same befell Tom Zielinski. Bond beats sored sky high this year, with incidents such as, Bond being hurled across the corridor of the top of Bussell's Shoulders and when Mr Tisdale while taking reg came across Will stamping Bonds face into the floor with his foot. This eventually led to Bonds catchphrase "I'm gonna fking sue".

Year 12: Sad times occured, over the summer many were lost in action LIA and Charles returned..... Oli and Bussell migrated to pastures new...i.e the peasant centre. Bond and Neil fell of the radar never to be seen again with rumours of Bond getting a modelling deal with Vogue. However re-enforcements arrived with Dan Jon from Witley, Patrick Leung, Wesley Lamb and Bartoz (dkafbddcnw) Sobzcx...or something like that. Language barriers were a problem this year with the word "what" used a record number of times.

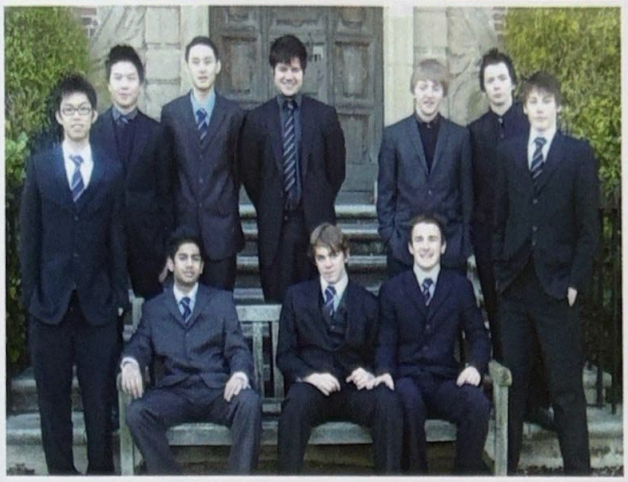

This year Will introduced his Julies bets, which resulted in Dan being doing stupid things in return for a fry-up the next morning i.e. Rohan being assaulted with a fire extinguisher, and doing a lap dance for Will Deeley in nothing but a thong. Charles earned the new name of the Cheese Bandit this year, after an incident involving the "long term" borrowing of Bart's cheese, he was later apprehended by the kitchen police and the remaining cheese returned. Ryan earned fame this year, with his new prime time chat show which soared in the ratings!

Year 13: Now we are at the top and we are in charge, our reign of terror can begin. Yet another soldier was Lost in action this summer, Tom Zielinski crashed and burned with a specular UUU performance in his AS exams, which even the biggest retard would be impressed with. Dan John improving his stupid actions to record proportions by urinating in public of the top of Founders, and setting up a tent in his room. The inter house drama was organised by us this year and true to our style it was stupidity all the way, with an outlandish performance of Anchorman, starring Dan "Burgundy" John and Will "Champ" McFarland. However at Christmas one last member was to fall with Dan becoming a permanent resident of the peasant centre. And of course being year 13 meant we became prefects (Bartosz was made Head of House this year...apparently), and so we were put in charge of organising Foster House Christmas Party, where amongst other things starred the amazing relay race (idea of Will, Dan and Rohan) which comprised of drinking milk, vinegar and eating lots of mince pies. Chaos ensued soon after, which the whole of the house decorating the outside of the old gym in true OSH style.

So in conclusion it has been a random ride with many idiotic events along the way, so from Foster year 13... "you stay classy, old swinford..."

"Right then boys! There was a bit of the old 'jiggerypokey' last night round the house and Mr Kenneth Fong is under the impression that it was you who raided him and locked him in a cupboard with a spider in his hair, he is not a happy fellow!" Mr Jenkins addresses our year early one morning in year 8.

Maybury! Standing tall and proud in the school it has always been a by word for sporting excellence, dubious Victorian construction and of course rebellion. Over the years a succession of house masters have tried their best to stamp this out but they have always failed for rebellion burns deep within the soul of every Maybury man, it is a trait unique to us and is what sets us apart from the simpering goody boys of the other houses. Maybury forever! We are Maybury till we die!

Year 7 set the scene with Si, Tom, Ed, Dave, Odum and Kyle all getting caught dorm raiding Baxter on the first night, with Si pretending to be in bed while hiding behind a locker. Nobody could quite understand Odum's straw incident. The rest of their days were spent dreaming of the time when they could enter Maybury for real and have outrageous jokes.

And so began the second year with 2 new arrivals, legends Will Porter and Marlon Dey. By the end of the year Will Porter would have established the record for the most sides ever received an astounding 186 for various misdemeanours. Year 8 also saw the invention of the most brilliant sports ever; tig off the floor and tig in the dark will always be remembered for Kyle's acrobatic skills and the sheer self destructive nature of both games which peaked with Ed Montagu tumbling head first from the banisters to knock himself out and lose his memory. We also introduced a new tactic of early morning dorm raids so we could avoid a counter attack by going to breakfast. Kiertan will also be remembered for his gorilla skitses, countered by Dave's ability to rugby tackle.

Year 9 saw the introduction of some of the biggest messes ever created... only one has survived, we call him Alem. Who can forget Alexander Philpotts who heard to cry "Yes I am a pussy!" when shot by Si's Pens BB gun. He made the mistake of going to war with the Penn brothers, and lost convincingly. He was eventually forced to leave after just one year of outrageous jokes at his expense. Alem arrived a nice young child who enjoyed TV and computer games but would leave a semi-alcoholic tramp who is a part-time nudist. We had to look up the names of Oscar Sakar Hunt(?) and James Robins(?) who were so irrelevant they may as well have been day boys. They had their moments though, Oscar memorably shat all over the floor of a cubicle once and James Robins was forced into a cold bath, several times, owing to his uniquely bad smell.

Year 10 and 11 continued much the same with dorm raids becoming an almost nightly occurrence, Tome visited Ed, and Will one night in a right 'state' he may or may not have been under the influence of alcohol but considering it was his 15th Birthday he probably was. Needless to say ed's rear end hurt afterwards. Pile-ons proved lethal as ever to hampson's ribs. "Ow mi elbow, knob off you knob", and "hit the deck" were some of his favourite sayings throughout the years 8-11. he also had a tendency to say stupidly obvious things which earned him the nickname,' State the obvious Hampson'. Study leave was spent not revising as one would expect but playing Blind man's bluff and corridor cricket, which, for some, proved a costly mistake and was probably why Si didn't come back for sixth form.

These years were spent avoiding 'Stell' wiyth his maglite, who we once mistook for a fellow dorm raider.... This was a mistake; we later reflected as we sat in the house library in one of Jenk's detentions!

Year 11 also saw untimely departure of Mr Jenkins and the arrival of Mr Smith, who, we have to admit, did not quite realise what he had put himself in for. Any of us went on to join the infamous la resistance movement.

Those survived into the sixth form suddenly found new hobbies to add to the usual ones which mostly included sneaking out to the Crispin and picture house. This had somehow gone unnoticed until Will Porter was caught climbing back in through a window late one night by Mr Smith. We were also joined by Eric and Ernie, two nice guys who were a bit quite and kept largely to themselves.
And so ends our time in Maybury, It has made us who we are and we will be sorry to leave her behind, but we take with us some brilliant memories and frinds we have made for life. So from Tome, will, Alem, Marlon, Ed, Odum, Dave, Eric, Ernie, Rob, Andy and Kyle we have one last message for the future boys of Maybury: Stay rebellious it is what makes us great, fight the General, break rules but never own up.

Maybury till we die!

Some of us haven't been here long, but Witley has still managed to make one hell of an impression on us. As much as we love the House, we have come and gone at different years and have had different experiences with different people. So, the Upper Sixth Witleyans have come together, varying in size and shape, to shed some light on the characters of the House:

James Derlein – a.k.a. Jeffery Beckham and his barmy army, need we say more – shukata? (2000-2003)

Joe "Messerschmitt" Mann – What a legend, his famous stories entertained us all! From diarrhoea ridden classrooms to WW2 fighter plane battles. (2000-2005)

Dan John – Leaving Witley in 2005 Dan John became a member of Foster. (2000-2005)

Stephen Yung – These days a House Prefect, Steve has kept himself to himself for the past couple of years, so you'll have to ask him to reveal his dark secrets, as we're at a bit of a loss. (2005-2007)

Kelvin Lo – He loved Witley house so much he decided to stay on for an extra year, to get to know his fellow Witleyans better. (2004-2007)

James "Quote" Vick – or Keith as he is more widely known proved South Park right when they said Gingers have no souls. Love you Vick. (2000-2007)

Christopher "Guns" McGovern – His 'night dances' occurred on many occasions when he was coming to terms with his drinking ability in years 8-11! (2000-2007)

Guy "Balland" Steed – His football master classes took him to the top flight of 2nds football, and he hold's the longest stretch for boarding, closely followed by Chris Sidwell. (2000-2007)

Manton "Herro" Cheung – Everyday is a new day for this house prefect. I will never forget waking up in the middle of the night to hear the Phantom of the Opera blasting through the wall. Cheers Manton. (2005-2007)

James "Meow" Stroud - A newbie into Year 12, he quickly became infamous for his love of cat's milk and the long standing KNEE injury that has plagued his glistening sports career. (2005-2007)

Jack "Dynamite" Connell – Over time Mr Connell has developed a cynical and arrogant attitude, mainly as a result of the nicknames relating him back to a certain character; hmm… I wonder who? (2002-2007)

Chris "Sidewinder" Sidwell - Acquiring an infinite amount of nicknames stemming from the amount of time he spent near computers, estimations were made as to how much time exactly: 66 hours a week was the final count! (2001-2007)

Guy "Dog-Poo-Shoe" Cowdry – For his love of break-time Monster Munches and for being able to cackle like the Devil. Now "representing" the house in Harris (2000-2007)

Vanjo Chan – For Counter-Striking it up all the time. When we watched him play, he simply stole our hearts away. Recently becoming a member of Harris, Vanjo doesn't spend that much time in the house, but his presence is certainly remembered. (2002-2007)

Sebastian Keany – King of the accidental innuendoes, Seb tested the strength of house ties in Year 7, but these days patrols around the house as a faithful Deputy Head, as he has always had a nose for sniffing out trouble. (2000-2007)

Andy Cheng – Forever putting the House Computers to good use, no internet model is safe with this cat on the prowl. He certainly has an eye for the ladies. Oh and Andy; get in the bin! (2005-2007)

Ocean Wong – Forever to be immortalised for his break-dancing at the Witley Christmas do, showing up Brooko and Ali, much to their displeasure. We'll never forget the motions of the Ocean. (2005-2007)

Matthew "Mooshoo" Kershaw – For his long standing service in the Queen's British Army, his valiant efforts throughout the Falklands War showed what a true legend this man really is. Andy McNab, who? (2003-2007)

Edward "Death-Man" Jones – Missed many a school Christian church service to perform the dark rituals of Satan; but rose to Head of House in his virgin year at the school regardless. (2005-2007)

Alistair "Err" Hill – Is a heifer and in the words of Mr. Kipling has an exceedingly large head. Not forgetting of course his uncanny ability to regularly dig into anyone and not take the return flak. (2003-2007)

In the days when we were younger, we used to take a serious beating from all the upper sixth, cold-bathing was a regular event for us, dorm-raids and sessions of Malco-Polo, many of which resulted in a wide array of injuries; including a fractured ankle. We all had so much fun and have the bruises and scars to prove it.
Witley hasn't just been a place to sleep at night, it's been a way of life, and what a life. Over the years the house has seen sex, scandal and suspensions, many of which will never be forgotten, no matter how hard we try.

All of these experiences have made us the Witleyans we are today. We just hope the world is ready for us, don't stand in the way, or we will besh you...

PLASTIC HOUSE REPORT

"Harris, Harris, Harris, land of diversity…But what of the people of Harris? What do they? Who is them? And why?"

In the aftermath of world war three, whilst the dust was still settling, year twelve joined in union and the havoc began…

Now fully fledged year thirteen's on the brink of adulthood we look back and reminisce. Along the way we've lost loved ones and not so loved ones, but in their absence we gained "The Doc" and two honorary year fourteens… You know who you are!

The introduction of the black book did not deter us, it further promoted our unruly behaviour in form of the dreaded fruit massacre, milk carton baseball, bursting butter and worst of all getting changed in the toilets. Criminal!

Harris year thirteen truly are thankful for the "can man," and Pepsi max "maximum taste, no sugar." We have to question if we would have made it through without them! And next, to Barbara, the resident cleaner with respiratory problems (Scampton,) we have tried our best to make her feel her job is worthy in Harris house!

We have all gained knowledge during our time here at OSH, most noticeably how to give yourself a free, beautifully demonstrated by angry beaver (does she ever go to history?) and Scampton (any lessons at all?)

Wildlife enthusiast Ross Bowser has repopulated the sixth form centre with beavers, otters, and VERY ANGRY FOXES. The fox species in particular has a habit of finding sanctuary at the bottom of many a bottle of Bacardi and white wine!

With the introduction of the anti bullying policy by the legendary Mr Jones there was drastic impact for the fragile and hormone ridden girls of Harris land. Regular beating (courtesy of Ross), taunting ("your otters as big as a wizards sleeve") and the hiding of the shoes in the can machine, not to mention the terrifying ransom of the cornflakes (Noel Edmunds..."good morning psychology") along with the never ending bullying of the gingja ninja. Talking of bullying- the "blueberry bitch"- lovingly named by Tom- really did meet her match this year and our achievement was driving a middle aged woman to near insanity! "Shall I offer him a chocolate?"

And as we face the final hurdle we promise ourselves…

Σ

- Be on time – Tom Hadley
- Stop swearing- Liz Brazier
- No kreatine- Andy Hill
- Never trust your theology teacher- Theologians
- Don't throw grapes- Emma Jeavons
- Stop drinking- Fay Jones
- Stop growing- Polly Doolittle
- No more hangovers- Amie Houlston

Now, as we draw to a close only one question remains…

"Who the hell threw the pepper at Mrs Lees?"

Good luck, be good, and if you can't be good be bad!!! Stay classy Harris leavers 07!!!

Love… The plastics. X

ALTERNATIVE HARRIS HOUSE REPORT

As soon as the year 13's left last year we fled from the cramped corridor invading the spacious 'alternative' end. Since then we have shared so many experiences together. We have laughed, joked and generally messed around in our frees, oh sorry I mean study periods! At the beginning of this year we started off as five areas and some floaters who couldn't decide between them... but now we have come together as one big friendship group against the dark side!! Our time at OSH will never be forgotten and the times we have had has shaped our 6th form lives.

The most exhilarating event for a few lucky ones in the "Original Free-Buddies (high five)" was playing hide and seek on one special Friday afternoon! Especially when Ash (Paul McCartney) was on, and we all hid in the disabled toilet (bulimics anonymous!!) and then when we vacated to the "dark side" we all ended up in the black book (dun dun dunnnnn!)

The emergence of the "Original Free-Buddies (high five)" sparked the formation of the "A-Team Free Team" and we were always competing in music tastes and coolness! Christian, Kat and Jen singing to Swing Swing from the tangles of my HEART!! Dinx, Guy and Helen having their theme tune! Buddies breakfast belly buster! Good times! Our beloved guitar which was brutally murdered! Bad times!

Some rather random events include but are not limited to the following: Janet and Christian's floor time! Jeffrey spent about a second with us then died by hitting the window! We gave him a grave in founders garden! Hours of Family Guy quotes! "Caroline do u want some sausage?" Padlocking Carl to the kitchen door was at the height of hilarity! Hopscotch frees!! METROSCOPES definitely an important event seeing it was a daily occurrence!

Heather and Lauren and their thrones! Lauren getting flung and thrown around by Greeny and Stens! Guy, Dan, Tom and Jonno amongst others going on egg fuelled drunken rampages! Guys 16" rims (cowface the sheep baaaahhhd!) Two of the funniest experiences in the past year had to be Lydia putting her hoodie on backwards when everyone was watching and the second was also Lydia pulling her skirt down by 'accident'! Sure it was an accident love!

Another great day was when one free group decided to analyse everyone's walks when watching them from the windows! MINI RAVES!! Our electro-house music raves in the corner! Carl, Dave, Gaz and his sound system!! Kirsty falling over! Luce and Beki being groped! Carl throwing a wet sock at Ash, missing him but hitting Helen in the mouth!! Sarah and Christian dancing to some jazz crap (not good behaviour for two medics!) Dan and his many hairstyles!

The arm wresting tournament where Kyle was crowned champ! The daily poker competitions went on for a few months! Guy is a dirty addict playing online poker! Strip jack naked was a revelation in our common room where Jen seemed to have beginners luck every game! Johnny and Carl and their year 12 biatches! James (Keith) being our very own Austin Powers!

The corner group almost sparked the 3rd world war when they decided to rearrange the room! They made the 'Central Perk' theme a reality but created the monstrosity of the 'alleyway of depression'! Word association game! Nicky, Sadia and Shaz bringing colour and hardness to the room! BRRRRAP! You can't turn down a bit of brown!! The banging door was an issue for most people, but it was easily solved with the previous day's metro being shoved in the hinges! Scholiver Timmis off to Cambridge!

Jonno is known for his chav car and footy! Chris the badminton king! Nathan and 'the priest' conoodling! With every birthday we celebrated together we got cakes and balloons although someone's latex allergy prohibits us from carrying on with that tradition! sob! Speaking for the majority of people in the "far side" we have enjoyed every minute of the past two years in the 6th form! Our final message is KEIGHLEY IS A LEGEND!!
